COMPANY PROFILE

Zamasport was founded in 1966 thanks to the transformation of the Maglificio Augusto Zanetti (founded at the beginning of the 20th century), a family-owned company specialized in producing knitwear lingerie. Currently, the company is managed by the family's third generation who continues to pursue high profile collaborative projects at the international level.

In the same year, the CALLAGHAN brand was created for a pret à porter line, designed by Walter Albini from 1968 until 1972, by Gianni Versace until 1986, by Romeo Gigli until 1995, later by Scott Crolla and in 2000 by Nicolas Ghesquière.

Zamasport has managed production and distribution licenses for world-renowned brands such as Helmut Lang, Norma Kamali, Katharine Hamnett, Romeo Gigli and, from 1993 until 2000, it was the worldwide licensee for GUCCI's production and distribution. The company currently collaborates with the most prestigious ready-to-wear brands, on the development of collections and industrial production, to which areas approximately 200 company resources are dedicated, with the total number climbing to 1000 if the supply chain is counted. Zamasport offers to its partners a 360-degree collaboration, from the sourcing of materials, to the development of prototypes and samples, to the delivery of the finished product, concerning all types of articles, from light-weight garments, to coats and jeans, and in its industrial process, it uses the most advanced CAD technologies for the creation of models and PLM technologies for product controls.
